Welcome back to a new semester at GCC! Did you know we have a collection of books on the history of Grove City College and the town of Grove City? Stop in and check out our featured collection in the library lobby. We also have past yearbooks dating back to 1912. We have a few out on display dating back to 1988. Stop in to check them out and ask at the main desk about the rest of our yearbook collection.

The 3rd annual library Open House is on Friday September 15th from 1-4pm. We invite faculty, staff and students to stop by for an introduction to the library. You’ll learn about our different resources and services and get a chance to meet with library staff. In case you need a study break there will be therapy dogs in the building from 1-4pm and kittens from 1-2:30 pm from the Grove City Pet Rescue.

We have new audio book titles in our collection that are part of a leasing program that we’re trying out. These titles are located on the top of the audio book display. We will refresh our selection every 4 months. So, some titles will be removed and new ones will be added in their place. Because we only have these titles for a short time, stop in and check them out for your next road trip!

We’re excited to announce this semester our new library blog! Look for it soon on our website! You will find posts about our resources, services, newest collections and more. We’ll even have some help from our student workers who will provide their perspectives on working in the library and share some of their favorite resources.
